

February Pet Dental Health Month

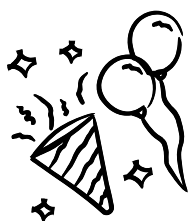

Did you know 80% of dogs and 70% of cats show signs of dental disease by age 3?

Dental health plays a major role in your pet's overall well-being, yet it's one of the most commonly overlooked areas of care. Plaque and tartar buildup can lead to bad breath, pain, tooth loss, and infections that spread to the heart, liver, and kidneys!

The good news? Dental disease is largely preventable with routine care and early intervention.

During Pet Dental Health Month, we're encouraging pet owners to schedule a dental exam and cleaning to help keep those teeth shining and tails wagging! Our team uses safe anesthesia and advanced dental technology to make the procedure as stress-free and effective as possible. At home, you can help maintain your pet's dental health by brushing their teeth daily or as often as possible, offering dental chews or approved treats, and scheduling regular veterinary checkups.
